TRADEMARK NITROGEN RECEIVES UNITED SAFETY COUNCIL'S SILVER AWARD FOR OUTSTANDING LOST-TIME PREVENTION

Tampa, Florida (March 9, 2017) – At the United Safety Council's 64th Annual Awards Banquet, representatives from TradeMark Nitrogen, David Jarrett, and Matthew Parsons-Cohrs, received the Council's Silver Award for "Outstanding Lost-Time Prevention". At the time of acceptance TradeMark Nitrogen had 4,056 days without a lost-time accident, approximately 11.1 years. TradeMark Nitrogen also received the Corporate Safety Certificate of Recognition. The United Safety Council's Annual Safety Awards Banquet is one of the largest of its kind in the nation. Each year the Council recognizes achievements in safety with awards and special presentations.

"This achievement could not have been attained without the consistent dedication from each of our thirty-four employees at TradeMark Nitrogen. Inside the front office, and outside in the plant, every single person has had a role in this accomplishment," exclaimed Mike Barry, President of TradeMark Nitrogen. Mike also stated that "it is very important that we carry this momentum forward, as safety is of the utmost importance in our industry and in our community."

This award is dedicated to the late Jeff Kirk, who had just recently passed away from a sudden heart attack. Jeff served as the EHS Manager at TradeMark Nitrogen for just over 5 years. "In that period, Mr. Safety gave us all that he had to give. He lived by his motto, "Safety is NO Accident", and strived every day to make sure that everyone returned home to their families and friends," exclaimed Miles Armstrong in an earlier memo to the employees at TradeMark Nitrogen after Jeff's passing.
